

Application Process for Proposed Development Permit Area 3 – Riparian Areas

Contact Islands Trust to assess whether the proposed project falls within Development Permit (DP) Area and fits criteria requiring permit. If yes, pick up a Development Permit Application.

Find and hire a Qualified Environmental Professional (QEP) to undertake assessment of the proposed project according to the Development Permit Area Guidelines.

Submit a completed QEP report and Development Permit application to the Islands Trust for consideration and processing.

Islands Trust will prepare a staff report outlining how the DP guidelines can be met. The report will be informed by the QEP report and will propose permit conditions for the application.

The Local Trust Committee will consider the application and staff recommendations. Development permits, ultimately, must be issued if they meet the applicable guidelines.